This Petition

Is a letter of serious concern from your downtown businesses regarding the unacceptable condition of the downtown streets.

The constant dust to our downtown is an embarrassment to our city. As business owners we have been very patient. May long weekend is quickly approaching we would like your immediate attention to this matter.

We have made many inquiries and requests, understanding that the city owned street sweeper is currently out of service. There surely is alternate options available, the fire department did a great job last year.

Lets get in on

COMMERCIAL Street Sweeping

Roads see a lot of action, whether private or public. Over time, they are bound to take the wear and tear of traffic. Potholes, cracks, debris from nature and vehicles all collect along the sides and medians. Street sweeping represents an important part of road maintenance, and Aqua Hot Wash can help.

Local Government Climate Action Program

The LGMA wants to be sure you do not miss this important Ministry announcement. Year two of the Local Government Climate Action Program launches today. The Ministry program provides local governments and Modern Treaty Nations with predictable and stable funding to support the planning and implementation of local climate action. Through annual reporting, the Climate Action Secretariat collects information from participants on equity, energy, greenhouse gas emissions, adaptation and resilience, buildings, transportation, land use and more.

Vaccines help protect us

IH Wide – During National Immunization Awareness Week (April 24 – 30), Interior Health encourages individuals and families to stay on track with their immunizations.

“It is hard to imagine a world without vaccines,” said Dr. Fatemeh Sabet, Interior Health medical health officer. “I am so grateful for having access to a simple tool that has saved millions of lives and prevented serious consequences of so many vaccine preventable communicable diseases.”

Vaccines are available to protect against a variety of diseases such as cervical cancer, influenza, whooping cough, meningitis, chickenpox and hepatitis.

In B.C., young children are offered vaccines at two, four, six, 12, and 18 months of age. As children get older and begin school, vaccinations continue to be offered. This is to help children develop protection against vaccine preventable diseases. Some vaccinations need booster doses as children enter their teens.

Vaccines help protect us. For example, the Human Papillomavirus (HPV) vaccine is available to all children starting in grade six to protect against infection from types of HPV that cause certain cancers, such as cervical and mouth cancers. A 2019 study showed that the HPV vaccine cut the rate of early stages of cervical cancer by more than half in B.C.

The need for vaccinations does not stop after childhood years. There are many vaccines recommended for adults. All adults in B.C. can get a booster of tetanus and diphtheria vaccine every 10 years. If you missed your basic series in childhood, depending on your health, age and other risk factors, you could be eligible for certain vaccines.

“The single most important factor that helped us reduce risk of severe impacts from COVID-19 and get back to living in a safer environment has been vaccination,” said Dr. Sabet. “I am so thankful to everyone who stood up and played their part in protecting themselves and our communities by getting vaccinated.”

Visit the Immunizations & Vaccines page for information on important immunizations for infants, children, adults, the elderly as well as immunizations for pregnant women and for travel. Contact your local health unit to speak to a public health nurse if you have questions about vaccines or getting your immunizations up to date.

I am pleased to share with you information about the provincial government's StrongerBC: Future Ready Action Plan designed to meet the challenges of today, to make sure people in British Columbia are ready to succeed and grow our inclusive and sustainable economy now and into the future.

The Future Ready Action Plan will develop trained, skilled and talented people to fill the jobs of today and tomorrow. It is the BC government's commitment to ensuring everyone in the province can access the post-secondary skills and training they need to build good lives, while developing the talent and skills that businesses and employers need so we can drive our economy forward and deliver the services we all rely on.

As a key pillar of the StrongerBC Economic Plan launched in February 2022, the Future Ready Action Plan invests an additional $480 million dollars over the next three years in targeted supports to a broad range of British Columbians.

The action plan is focussed on five pillars:

- Making post-secondary more affordable, accessible and relevant;
- Providing the innovation and skills needed to fill the jobs of tomorrow faster;
- Breaking down barriers so everyone can find a job that works for them;
- Addressing Indigenous People's workforce priorities; and
- Making it easier for people new to Canada to find a job in which they are trained.

I am grateful to those who shared feedback and insights during the StrongerBC: Future Ready Action Plan engagement sessions in May 2022. As a result of this collaborative process, I am confident the Action Plan will support British Columbians to acquire the skills they need to succeed in British Columbia's diverse and innovative economy. I am also confident that it will become easier for employers to find the talent and skills they need to sustain and grow their enterprises.

If you would like more information about the Action Plan and how it can benefit you, I encourage you to reach out to my office or participate in one of the roundtables we will be holding over the next few months.

The Future Ready Action Plan is an historic investment in people—because what helps people succeed in our economy, makes our economy succeed for people.

Sincerely,

Honourable Selina Robinson
Minister

BRITISH COLUMBIA

April 25th, 2023

British Columbia Municipalities and First Nations:

I am writing to you today to discuss emergency preparedness and the resources that may assist your governments and residents in getting ready for potential emergencies. As we have observed over recent years, emergencies can be unpredictable, and it is never too early to be informed and prepared for the unexpected. We know that extreme weather events that impact British Columbians will increase in both frequency and intensity due to climate change, and the work of our new ministry to prepare for the impact of the climate crises has already begun.

I would first like to share a reminder that on February 21st, 2023, Premier David Eby and I jointly announced the launch of ClimateReadyBC, a new initiative led by the Ministry of Emergency Management and Climate Readiness (EMCR). This is an online hub designed to assist local authorities with climate readiness strategies and support; this includes guidance, mapping tools, information on funding programs, and more. ClimateReadyBC can be found at <https://climatereadybc.gov.bc.ca/>, and you can email any questions or concerns to ClimateReadyBC@gov.bc.ca.

The impacts of extreme temperatures in summer and winter can be severe, and it is important that they be given due consideration as emergencies that should be planned for and mitigated. While the establishment of cooling and warming centres are locally led, EMCR is able to provide support by reimbursing eligible costs and by amplifying information on centre availability and location to maximize public awareness. First Nations and local governments are encouraged to establish extreme weather emergency plans, and the ministry would be happy to provide guidance on available resources and eligible re-imburements.

With the coming summer season, I wanted to remind you that the BC Heat Alert and Response System describes recommended actions for Indigenous communities and local authorities during extreme heat events. Additionally, the BC Centre for Disease Control has developed a guide for Municipal Heat Response Planning in British Columbia. You can find more information about supports during extreme heat events in the following links:

- Extreme Heat Emergency Task Number Eligibility
- Extreme Heat Eligibility Assessment Supplement

As a reminder, the Community Emergency Preparedness Fund \(CEPF\) is a suite of funding streams intended to enhance the resiliency of First Nations, local governments, and communities in responding to emergencies. Funding is provided by the Province of BC and is administered by the Union of BC Municipalities (UBCM). In February 2023, the Province committed a further $180 million to CEPF, bringing the total investment to $369 million.

Current open intakes for CEPF include:

- Public Notification and Evacuation Route Planning: The intent of this funding stream is to support eligible applicants to develop Evacuation Route Plans and/or Public Notification Plans that provide information for local governments, First Nations, and community members in the event of an emergency. This funding intake closes for applications on April 28th, 2023.
- Extreme Temperature Risk Mapping, Assessment, and Planning: The intent of this funding stream is to support eligible applicants to ensure they have accurate knowledge of the risks associated with extreme temperatures, and how these risks will change over time, and to develop effective response plans and strategies to prepare, mitigate, and adapt to those risks. This funding intake closes for applications on June 2, 2023.

British Columbia's emergency preparedness education program, known as PreparedBC, offers a variety of resources that you can access to help your residents and communities prepare for emergencies, which includes the Extreme Heat Preparedness Guide, as well as a variety of personal preparedness and hazard-specific guides. Visit www.PreparedBC.ca to access these resources, and find further information on preparedness programs, such as High Ground Hike and Master of Disaster, and ready-to-go social media toolkits.

Emergency Info BC is the provincial source for current emergency information. Active 24/7/365 both on Twitter @EmergencyInfoBC and on the web at EmergencyInfoBC.ca, it is the central resource for up-to-date information on all provincial-scale emergencies impacting the people of BC. Please consider encouraging residents in your community to follow Emergency Info BC in addition to your own information channels for the latest verified emergency updates.

Keeping British Columbians safe from emergencies and confident in our response readiness is a shared responsibility, and I thank you for your important work and collaboration on this. Please do not hesitate to reach out to me or my team if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Bowinn Ma
Minister of Emergency Management and Climate Readiness

The following estimate is for the replacement of the front door unican 1000 with the newer Schlage CO-100 Digital Combination Lever Handle Lockset on the current Fire Hall across from City Hall. This includes the keying to the cities Grand Master key and the new Fire Hall Master key (from the new system which was built off of the Cities Grand Master Key) This estimate does not cover door and frame replacement which was previously mentioned to be of interest, if the city would like an estimate to completely replace the door, frame and the hardware all at once please let us know and we will come out and survey to see the exact level of work that will be required to bring in and install a new commercial steel door for the front door of the Fire Hall.

Yes, I think the cottonwood trees should come down. Each spring they drop sticky seeds and they stick to vehicles when the wind blows towards the RV stalls, and the caterpillar-like seeds too is bothersome. From the southend, there are about 30 trees to be cut down. Poplar is okay in the northend. Total is 50 cottonwood. Any decision from the council?
One large branch was down during the flooding. Chuck
